ABRUPT CLIMATE CHANGE

Past, Present, and Future

Lonnie Thompson

Thursday, November 15, 2007
HIG Auditorium
4:45 p.m.

Lonnie Thompson, world renowned glaciologist, received the distinguished National Medal of Science for his work that provides explicit evidence of global climate change. The award caps nearly three decades of research on glaciers that took him to some of the world's most remote regions and highest mountains.
